ALASH Tuvan Music
Ensemble:
A Lecture-Demonstration
Monday, March 26, 2018
11:15 am-12:05 pm, Room 110
Natalie L. Haslam Music Center

Join world-renowned music ensemble Alash, from the central Asian country of Tuva, as they explain and demonstrate a rich and exciting music making tradition. Famous for a regionally unique and engaging style of throat singing known as khoomei, Alash will provide live demonstrations and explanations of this striking practice. Further, they will discuss this music within its cultural and political contexts.

All are welcome. Free and open to the public.
